COMPAIGN TO INCREASE EGGS

FEEDING AND CULLING CAMPAIGN IS ANNOUNCED.

PREPARE FOR CULLING

Flock Owners Who Are Interested Should Notify the County Agent, J. Ross Fleetwood.

A summer feeding and culling campaign for Nodaway County has been announced by J. Ross Fleetwood, county extension agent. This is a statewide campaign and is carried on in co-operation with the Extension Service of the Missouri College of Agriculture.

The purpose of the campaign is for the increase of egg production during the hot summer months and the preparation of birds for culling to take place in August or September.

"In the past," says Mr. Fleetwood, "too many flocks have been culled which were not being handled properly prior to culling, which therefore makes it impossible to do a good job.

"Flock owners who are interested should enroll their flocks now," he says. This can be done, according to Mr. Fleetwood, by writing or calling the county agent at Maryville. Proper report blanks and directions will be furnished.

The natural egg production season for the fowl is in the Spring. Nature provided this so she could hatch out her young. By scientific breeding and feeding methods man has developed the hen so she will not only lay eggs during the spring, when prices are low, but will produce them throughout the summer and fall months when prices are higher. The summer feeding and culling campaign will help you in producing these high priced eggs.

If some neighbor should tell you where you could sell your eggs at 5 cents above market price you certainly would trade there. By proper feeding and culling methods you can increase your margin of profit 5 cents per dozen which is the same as a bonus price over your old system. The difference between the feed cost per dozen and the selling price per dozen is your profit. If you are not feeding a balanced ration during the summer months your egg production will be low and your feed cost per dozen eggs will be high. A hen takes ⅓ of her feed to keep her body alive and unless you keep her on a full feed you lose your chance to make a profit. One experiment covering 10 years of work at the Missouri College of Agriculture showed that a hen in one year fed 55 pounds of grain and 18 pounds of mash containing only bran shorts and cornmeal laid 61 eggs; while the same ration with 6 pounds of tankage added gave a production of 119 eggs per hen. When sour milk was supplied in place of the tankage practically the same results were secured.

A simple and economical laying mash can be made by mixing 200 pounds of bran, 200 pounds shorts and 100 pounds tankage or meat scraps. If 3 gallons of milk for each 100 hens is available the tankage may be omitted. In the summer time the hen loses her appetite for dry mash. It should be kept in a self-feeding hopper before the hens at all times and in addition a small amount should be moistened with milk or water until it is in a crumbly condition. This wet mash should be fed once each day, preferably around noon, care being taken not to mix more mash than the birds can consume in half an hour. Wet mash spoils very easily in warm weather and this ferment causes digestive troubles. Many successful poultrymen reduce the amount of grain fed during the warm months thus giving the hens more appetite for mash.

Oregon School Law Held Unconstitutional

Would Have Required Attendance At Public Schools—District Court Of Appeals Adjourns.

Washington, June 1.—The Oregon school law, requiring all children between 8 and 16 years of age to attend public schools exclusively, was declared unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court today.

Washington, June 1.—The District of Columbia Court of Appeals adjourned today for the summer without handing down a decision in the contempt case brought against Harry F. Sinclair for refusing to answer questions propounded by the Senate committee which investigated the naval oil reserve scandals. Decision was withheld, Chief Justice Smith said, because cases involving almost identical questions were before the United States Supreme Court.

ASSESSOR HAS WET GOODS

M. E. RUSSELL CAUGHT WITH MOONSHINE WHISKEY.

HIS FARM SEARCHED

Three Gallons Found on Premises—Gives $500 Bond to Appear in Circuit Court Saturday.

M. E. ("Mike") Russell, assessor of Lincoln township, who live northeast of Elmo, gave $500 bond this morning to appear Saturday in circuit court to answer charge of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor.

This was evidently Russell's attempt to distribute moonshine whiskey and he was caught gathering up some of the forbidden spirits Saturday night by Deputy Sheriff O. V. Knuckles of Elmo. Deputy Knuckles brought his prisoner to Maryville with about a gallon of moonshine whiskey that he had taken off of Russell Saturday night and the prisoner lodged in the county jail.

Sheriff Lowell B. Campbell and Deputy Knuckles, armed with a search warrant visited the Russell farm yesterday morning. Here they unearthed three gallons of illicit whiskey, buried there on his farm.

Charges of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor were brought against Russell by the prosecuting attorney, George Pat Wright, and the defendant is scheduled to appear at an adjourned session of circuit court on Saturday of this week.

Elmo Shipping Assn. Draws Up Articles

The directors of the Elmo Shipping Association met with four other members of the organization Saturday and drew up articles of incorporation. The corporation is formed under the non-stock, non-profit act of 1923.

As soon as the articles are approved by the state department a charter will be granted.

Potentate

James C. Burger of Denver is expected to be made Imperial Potentate, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, at the imperial council of that order in Los Angeles, June 3-4.

890 STUDENTS ARE ENROLLED

RECORD FIRST DAY IS SET FOR SUMMER TERM.

EXPECT MANY MORE

Residence Hall is Crowded to Capacity And Light Housekeeping Rooms Are Hard to Find.

Eight hundred and ninety students had enrolled for the summer term at the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College up to 3 o'clock this afternoon, according to a statement made at the College.

The total enrollment for the first day last year was 612 students. At the close of the second day, 948 students had enrolled and at the end of the third, 1,068.

The increase in the first day's enrollment this year is probably due to a more efficient system in enrolling, it was said, although the total enrollment is expected to reach the fifteen hundred mark.

The Residence Hall is filled to capacity and has a long waiting list. One hundred and thirty-eight girls are now rooming at this place. Miss Ann Stowell, who is in charge of the cafeteria, has about twenty boys assisting in preparing and serving the meals to the summer students.

The Residence Hall girls will hold the first house meeting of the summer tomorrow evening. Miss Vesta Wright of Fairfax is president of the organization for this summer by virtue of being elected last semester. The remaining officers will be elected at the meeting tomorrow night.

All of the cottages on the College Park grounds have been rented for the semester. There is at the present time an acute shortage of rooms for lighthouse keeping and Maryville people who would like to rent rooms for this purpose are requested to notify Mrs. A. R. Perrin.

All of the incoming trains have been loaded with students and more are expected to arrive tonight. College classes will start tomorrow morning.

A series of tournaments and athletic contests have been arranged for by Coaches H. F. Lawrence and Paul Jones, for the students. Tennis, baseball, basketball, track, horse shoe pitching, as well as other sports will be on the program.

Classes are offered in swimming at 6, 7, 8, and 11 o'clock. The classes will be taught by Miss Helen Manley and Miss Ruth Bass, of woman's physical education department, and credit will be given to the students who enter the classes.

Nations Given Prison Term and Fined $3,333

Former State Labor Commissioner Receives Sentence of Eighteen Months Imprisonment in Addition to Fine.

St. Louis, June 1.—Heber Nations, former state labor commissioner and ardent supporter of the Missouri Anti-Saloon League, today was sentenced to serve eighteen months imprisonment and fined $3,333, following his conviction on charges of violating the dry law.

Nations was found guilty last Friday of providing protection to the Griesedieck Brewing Co., for a consideration alleged in testimony to have reached approximately $13,000.

Nations was removed from the United States marshal's office where he had been held prisoner for more than three days. He was permitted a visit to the barber shop prior to appearing before Federal Judge Faris for sentence.

"Have you anything to say?" Judge Faris asked.

"No," replied Nations crisply.

The court then pronounced sentence and on notice of appeal, fixed his bond at $7,000, which was immediately signed.

Charles H. Prather, former state food and drug commissioner, who was indicted in the same alleged conspiracy, will be sentenced tomorrow on his plea of guilty. He testified against Nations during the trial last week.

Jennie Garrett Home.

Miss Jennie Garrett returned home Saturday night from San Francisco, Cal., where she has been almost a year. She will spend the summer with her mother, Mrs. W. T. Garrett.

Miss Faye Rounds left this morning for St. Joseph where she will spend the day.

END COMES TO T. R. MARSHALL

FORMER VICE-PRESIDENT DIES AT WASHINGTON.

WAS FAMOUS LEADER

Prominent in Democratic Circles in Indiana and Sprang Into National Limelight in 1912.

Washington, June 1.—Thomas Riley Marshall of Indiana, former vice-president of the United States, died here this morning.

Marshall had been ill at a hotel here with a severe cold contracted during a trip to the capital from his home in Indianapolis. His condition had improved during the last few days, however, and physicians regarded him on the way to recovery.

THOMAS R. MARSHALL.

The end came at 9:40 o'clock this morning while the former vice-president was sitting up in bed reading his Bible.

Marshall was 71 years old last March. He was born in North Manchester, Ind., and educated at Wabash College. After practicing law at Columbia City, Ind., for a number of years, Marshall became a power in the Democratic party in his native state, and served as governor from 1909 to 1912.

The Democratic national convention at Baltimore in 1912, which nominated Woodrow Wilson for the presidency, chose Marshall for second place on the ticket. He served as vice-president during the eight years of the Wilson administration, and since March, 1920, has been engaged in lecturing in various parts of the country, while taking no active part in national politics.

(By Felix Bruner)

(Editor of the Indianapolis Times, written exclusively for the United Press.)

Indianapolis, June 1.—"I shall never be president of the United States. If Woodrow Wilson should die, I feel that I should resign. I do not feel equal to the responsibilities of the presidency."

This startling statement was made to me by Thomas Riley Marshall, then vice-president of the United States, at a time when the death of President Wilson was expected momentarily in 1919.

It has been said of Thomas Riley Marshall that he is a chip of the old pioneer block; that he is a man of the prairies who, early in life, imbibed the principles of Jefferson and Jackson and has never forgotten them, and that his sterling, old-fashioned democratic Americanism marks a simplicity of thought and habit which is so highly characteristic of the true American.

It has also been said that the former Vice-President has so modestly ogdded publicity that most Americans do not know what a really able man he is.

But, unintentionally, he attained nation-wide publicity when said, whimsically, that what the country needed more than anything else "was a good, five-cent cigar."

The reaction was countless hundreds of congratulatory messages, proving a little matter of a nickel need seemed as serious as some of the involved political questions of the hour.

At the expiration of his service as Vice-President, the amiable Hoosier remarked jocosely:

"For eight years I have been in the cave of the winds—I need a rest."

Was Perfect Vice-President.

Despite that humorous description of the Upper House, he had made himself respected as its presiding officer.

ROBERT WHITE WILL RETURN

MISSING WITNESS IS FOUND AT PITTSBURGH.

BOTH SIDES ANXIOUS

State And Defense Claim He Will Score For Them Regarding Shepherd's Appearance at "University."

Chicago, June 1.—Robert White, missing witness in the William D. Shepherd trial, who has been sought over the country for more than two weeks, is in Pittsburgh today, broke, weary and ready to return to Chicago if someone will advance railroad fare.

White's whereabouts were definitely established by means of a long distance telephone call, charges collect, to a friend of White in Chicago, who asked that his identy be withheld.

In his conversation, White, supposedly a witness for the state but claimed also by the defense by virtue of an alleged affidavit he is alleged to have made repudiating his statement to the prosecution, did not indicate for which side he would testify when he returned.

The defense, however, is positive White on the stand would stick to his alleged statement that he never had seen Shepherd at Charles C. Faiman's National University of Science where the state charges he obtained the typhoid germs with which he is alleged to have innoculated William Nelson Mc Clintock.

Cunningham, American Consul-General At Shanghai Says Volunteer Reservists Are Called Out.

Shanghai, June 1.—Shanghai's general strike and boycott brought fresh bloodshed and an enlarged casulty list today in a city rife with excitement ½

Between ten and twenty Chinese were seriously wounded when police fired on a mob again attempting to block traffic on the naking road, principal highway of the foreign settlement.

Three more deaths brought the toll today to eleven in the disturbance following the Chinese protest against discharge of Chinese employes in a Japanese cotton factory.

Washington, June 1.—Outbreaks of violence in China probably will lead to American warships being sent to Shanghai at once to aid in protecting foreign lives and property, it was learned here today.

In a report to the state department, Edwin S. Cunningham, the United States Consul-general at Shanghai, said that foreign police and volunteer reservists already had been called out to maintain order.

London Explorers Believe Polar Aviators May Have Been Deceived By Smooth Surface.

London, June 1.—That Capt. Roald Amundsen and his associate flyer, Lieut. Lincoln Ellsworth may have been deceived by the smooth appearance of the ice and landed their airplanes in the pit of a crevice was the theory advanced here today by aviators and explorers to explain the eleven-day silence since the expedition left Spitzbergen for presumably an eighteen-hour trip to the pole.

Although offers of aid have been made to the Norwegian government by the United States, France, Italy and individuals, there is as yet no definite move for a relief expedition.

Kansas City, June 1.—Indications that Norton B. Rixey committed suicide and was not murdered as friends had insisted were seen here today with the evidence that a cafe proprietor who claims that Rixey had lunched at his place at 12:30 o'clock, more than an hour after the cotton broker was seen with two men in his office.

No trace has been found of the large check sent him from the Chickasha Cotton Oil Co.

A LAW A DAY SINCE 1789.

A law a day since 1789 is Congress' record, according to United States Representative Ramseyer of Iowa. This brings home a little more forcibly the fact that we as a nation have passed too many laws. The American Bar Association and the American Law Institute have joined in pleading for fewer and simpler laws. They tell us that defects in criminal procedure are directly contributing to the increase in crime.

The United States has the reputation of being the worst law-breaking nation. Many of our leaders, realizing this, are urging simplification of our laws. Attorney-General Sargent and Justice Stone are advocating fewer laws. Senator Reed recently said before our state legislature, "We have 15,000 more laws than we ought to have." He continued that there were 18,000 laws on the statute books of the various states.

Former Vice-President Marshall recently remarked, "We used to have one law for the rich and one for the poor, but now we have a thousand for each. Ohio enacts a law this year; Indiana enacts it next, and while Illinois in the third year is going through the movement of putting it on her statute books Ohio repeals it and Indiana discovers it a dead letter. The people are close to death's door through acute statutory indigestion."

The leaders of the two great American legal organizations are advocating a uniform code of criminal procedure as a means of limiting crime. We are hearing this advocated by many. Obtaining such a uniform code is a problem for the specialists in technical law to solve. However, the public should be awakened to the existing need for such uniformity and should contribute some thought as to how to bring about the best system.—Columbia Missourian.

Crater Tells of His Trip to the Farmers' Fair

"My Trip to Columbia," which is given here below, was written by Raymond Crater, age 12 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Crater of near Ravenwood. The Crater boy was awarded a trip to the Junior Farmers Fair at Columbia on the merits of his work in the Nodaway County Boys and Girls Club. The story of his trip as he tells it is as follows:

"My Trip to Columbia."

I started April 27th about 10:50 P. M. Mr. Fleetwood went with me. We arrived at Centralia about four o'clock Tuesday morning. We stayed in a hotel lobby till day light and then we ate breakfast and then went to see the town.

The train taking us to Columbia arrived at Centralia about seven o'clock and we arrived at Columbia at eight o'clock the same morning. We went and saw the University Building which was made of rock instead of brick. There were boys from all over the state, about 250 all together.

After we had seen most all of the buildings we went and registered in one of the agriculture buildings. Then we went and looked up the place where we were going to board which was a place where Mr. Fleetwood stayed while he went to school down there.

There was something going on every day. One afternoon we went and saw the chicken and turkey farm and saw all of the orchards and bee-hives.

One afternoon there was stock judging going on. Mr. Fleetwood did not take a team for judging so I didn't get to judge. I didn't know how to judge horses, mules, sheep, hogs and dairy cattle, anyway, all I know how to judge is baby beef steers.

After the boys gave their reasons for placing the stock the judges explained the good points on all of the stock. Then the judges told me who won in the judging and everybody went to the west agriculture building where they gave out the cups. It made my mouth water when the teams would all around me get up and go down in front to get their large cups.

The University had a farm of 80 acres, six miles out of town and on the edge of town they had a dairy with two rows of stanchions with an entry in between the two rows to haul feed to the cows. They had milking machines and I saw them using them and they had a milk room where they had a separator run by a motor and a place to cool and weigh the milk. They milk the cows three times a day because they have them on experiments and they give too much milk to just milk them twice a day. They had 100 head of cows and Holsteins, Jerseys and Guernseys.

The last day they had a farmers fair which was very interesting. They had a number of side shows such as the automatic skirt lifter was a mouse and fresh country butter was a ram.

I came home on Saturday and I had a nice trip and I thank the Wabash Railway for giving me my transportation to Columbia which made my trip more pleasant.

Mrs. R. H. Perry went to Hopkins today for a two weeks' stay.

Civil War Was Fought by Boys

The veterans of the Civil war are still fondly spoken of as "boys," "the boys in blue." Year after year for sixty years still "boys." It has become almost as specialized as a destgnation of the soldiers of the Civil War, as senator, as alderman. As age was supposed to mean wisdom, the highest legislative body of old was at first actually and later theoretically, at least, composed of old men. Senator, alderman, means simply, old man.

So the boys in blue, who were only boys when in that blue, have stayed boys in affectionate address ever since, says the Manchester Union. No succeeding war has carried that entitlement. In current conversation we hear the soldiers of the World war spoken of as "soldiers," "legionnaires," even as "veterans." But seldom indeed as "boys." Just why is this? How did the soldiers of the Civil war gain and keep the name "boys?"

Because they were boys, boys as the soldiers of none of our other wars were. That war was fought by boys. When the officer addressed them as "boys" he spoke a literal fact. When the general before a charge cried "boys" he addressed a body that might have been assembled from school and college yards, and were so assembled. There were majors and colonels under twenty. Charles Stoughton was colonel of a Vermont cavalry regiment at seventeen! Boys they were and boys they remained in name and spirit and are still.

There has always been a strange unaccountableness in the buoyancy of spirit of the soldier of the Civil war. It was the last great war that was also a great spectacle, fought over an immense territory, with imposing marches, immense rides, and it caught the imagination as modern wars do not. The dash of cavalry, the charge with the colors, has gone. The Civil war was a great sporting event, fought by boys with the high spirits that they would have fought a football game.

PLEADS FOR UNITED NATION.

Piedmont, Mo., May 31.—Six counties joined in Memorial day exercises here today with Frederick D. Gardner formerly governor of Missouri, the principal speaker.

"Let it be remembered on this day that we do not honor our fallen warriors at Protestants or Catholic, Jews or Gentiles, natives or foreign born," the ex-governor said. "When the nation called all responded with equal fidelity and loyalty. They fought with equal bravery.

"Let us pray that the time will never come when any men or set of men will successfully arouse the prejudice of any class against another or separate our citizenship into religious-political groups."

INNING GAME TO HOPKINS YESTERDAY HERE.

BEST GAME YET

e-Reel Comedy Memorial Day at Clarinda Lost to All-Nations 14 to 24.

Hopple, right fielder for Hopkins, t man to bat for Hopkins. Conted with the ball in the first of eleventh inning for a three-base w h was the beginning of the of the best baseball game witsed on the local diamond here this r when Hopkins defeated the M. B. C., 6 to 4 in an eleven inning e yesterday.

he next Hopkins batter got to t on a wild heave from short to t and Buhler walked Haynes, Hop s pitcher. The next three batters und out, and instead of throwing runners out at home, they were ght at first base, allowing two runs Hopkins, that cinched the game the Maryville batters went down, two, three, when they came to in the last of the eleventh.

The strong wind from the south hined air-tight playing and kept what ld be hits, inside the diamond. pkins, however, gave better support the pinches, coming through with ard-earned victory.

The local boys out-hit the visitors, ting six to Hopkins five. Heine hler, pitching for Maryville, faltered y once. This was in the third in- g when he passed two men to first e, who came home on sacrifice s, that gave Hopkins a chance to ome dangerous. Passed balls to t base were not unusual, because he high wind, that in the end provdisastrous.

Baldwin, who attended the State achers College this winter and play- on the Cub team, was a bulwark strength on the Hopkins infield and never missed a chance.

Next Sunday the Maryville Merchants' team will play the Kansas City Monarchs, a negro team, that has been going strong this year. Yesterday there was a $57.50 crowd out to witnees the local business players put up a good exhibition of the National game, which hardly payed expenses.

The box score yesterday:

Maryville—	AB	R	H	PO	A	E
P. Tobin, ss	5	1	0	2	2	3
Mayes, rf	5	0	0	0	0	1
Liley, cf	5	1	1	1	0	0

Baldwin, 2b	5	1	0	8	3	0
Reeder, c	5	1	0	0	2	1
Totals	45	6	5	33	12	5

Score by innings:

Maryville	110	002	000	00—4
Hopkins	002	020	000	02—6

Strikeouts: Buhler, 11; Haynes, 13. Bases on balls: Buhler, 4; Haynes, 2. Maryville 6 hits, 2 double plays. Hopkins, 5 hits. W. Wray, umpire.

It was first down and ten to go in the last of the fourth inning at Clarinda Saturday, in the Memorial day game with the All-Nations, and the All-Nations made the full ten—not yards — but scores, before three of the Clarinda players were retired.

Maryville had been leading the opponents, scoring nine runs in the first four innings, but when the last of the fourth finally came to a close the score was 16 to 9. Clarinda then scored another touchdown and a safety, while all Maryville could push over after the fourth inning was one point less than a touchdown. So Maryville left the Iowa town with the small end of a 24 to 14 score. Quite impossible it seems, but the score book tells the disaster.

Clarinda got seven hits off of Joy in the fourth, but that was no reason for so many runs. The backing he got permitted six errors to be chalked up against the M. M. B. C., in that frame, that would make any man downhearted, so he refused to go back to the mound the next inning.

Two men called signals for Maryville and three passed the ball to the man behind the plate. England went in for Mayes as catcher, and after Joy left the mound he was succeeded by E. Yehle and finally Brennan. In fact it was a mixed up ball team that closed the day about six o'clock as the wind was letting up from about a sixty mile gale to a mere wind storm. The best thing Maryville did was get over there and back safely. But it was not a game that was highly essential to win, and the M. M. B. C., got some practice under a hot sun and strong south wind.

It was useless to try and figure up the box score, as the squares on the right side of the page are not large enough. Phil Tobin played the whole game at short. Mayes, next in batting order, gave way to England, who came in from left field, and Buhler took the left garden, and then in the seventh inning came in to first base as Brennan went from first to the mound, and then Yehle filled the field position. Liley, cf; Meyers, 3b; Still, rf; Jameson, 2b, continued at the positions during the entire game.

What may be said about the game Maryville must be given credit for a home run by Meyers, that brought in two runners ahead of him, and two double-plays were pulled off by the local players.

The Clarinda line-up:

Long, rf; Gorrell, 3b; Able, 2b; Kendall, cf; Nash, 1b; English, c; McNeal, lf; Gray, ss; Knuckles, p. Knuckles and Kendall traded places in the fifth inning. Gray umpired the nine-reel comedy creditably.

Ford

Easy to handle In the press of traffic, the driver of a Ford experiences little strain and effort.

He finds that its simplified control and quick get-away enable him to thread the crowded thoroughfares with an ease that only a Ford can give.

He finds that the problem of parking, which proves so serious in a large city, is of little consequence to him because of the simplicity with which a Ford may be maneuvered back and forth into a very small space.

Many owners of larger cars use a Ford for daily city driving because of its easy control. Good will towards this car is increasing year after year because it has proved to be a sound motoring investment for everyone.

Blazed Trails

The Indian, who blazed a trail through the forest, has been succeeded by the scientific road builder of today. Tomahawks have given way to concrete mixers.

The concrete road—open in all weather, giving years of service, needing practically no repairs—is the preferred type of permanent highway. In Illinois alone, state road builders have used more than 6,500,000 barrels of Portland Cement during the past two years.

When you want permanence in any construction, use concrete and insist on having it made with Atlas Portland Cement.

R. C. Juniors at St. Marys Make Portfolio

A portfolio made for International Exchange in the Junior Red Cross Department of the Red Cross has been made by the pupils in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades of the St. Marys parochial school, under the direction of two St. Benedictine Sisters, and placed in the hands of Miss Betty Turner, executive Red Cross secretary, to be sent out to some foreign county.

The portfolio, of brilliant water colorings and drawings, is quite remarkable for the fact that this is the first year that art has been taught in the St. Marys school and the work of the Red Cross Juniors of that school shows a great deal of patience and ability.

The portfolio is addressed "To Our Unknown Friends."

The Red Cross Juniors that helped to make the portfolio possible are: W. Heekin, Raleigh Heekin, Margorie Heekin, W. Hansen, E. Sturm, Alfred Hiatt, G. Rife, Gertrude Rife, M. Heeken, Wilbur Heeken, R. Seiple, Robert Seiple, Wilhelmina Hansen.

GOD IS OUR BEST FRIEND

MINISTER CAUTIONS AGAINST FORGETTING GOD.

TELLS WHY WE FORGET

Baptist Pastor Has For His Sermon Yesterday Morning, the Subject "Lest We Forget."

In his Sunday morning sermon, "Lest We Forget" the Rev. Guy L. Prather, pastor of the Baptist church, cautioned his congregation against forgetting of God. He chose as his theme the second verse of the 103 Psalm which reads "Forget Not All His Benefits."

"That injunction is given in many different places and in many different words in the Bible," he said.

"It is folly to forget God. God is the greatest fact with which we have to do. He is the closest and nearest thing with which we have to do. If boys and girls go to school and cannot learn to distinguish between things, we call them dumb. If you do not learn the name of the town in which you are living, there is something wrong. If people live every day with God and do not know him, there is something wrong," he declared. "I do not like to call any one names, but the Bible says that such a man is a fool.

"God is the best friend and our greatest helper. Greater than any other friendship is the friendship of God," he continued.

After speaking of the dangers of forgetting, the pastor pointed out why we forget. "We forget lessons that are not well learned. There is the possibility that we, as Christians, have not learned our lessons so well that we have forgotten God. We go about our daily affairs and forget the lessons that we have just partly learned.

"We also forget what we want to forget. When we do not use a thing it becomes rusty. That is true in our religious life. While we are working in the service of God we keep all the rust worn off but sometimes we forget the Bible and then we are rusty in the service of God," Reverend Prather told his congregation.

Prosperity causes us to forget, believes the speaker, and he showed how many persons work with their business on Sunday morning rather than go to church. He also thought that if social activities were indulged in to such an extent that they prevented church attendance, they were harmful.

In speaking of how not to forget God, the pastor said that God has left many things in the world, the church, religion, prayer and the Bible. "If you will exercise yourself along these lines you will not forget Him. May God grant that we may not forget," was his closing counsel.

Question: Why is a Buick so safe and so easy to steer?

Answer: Because of Buick's wonderful steering mechanism. It is the most expensive type now installed on any motor car—and worth the difference because it adds to Buick performance still another point of superiority.

Private Lessons in Dramatics

The Northwest Missouri State Teachers College announces that arrangements have been made to offer private instruction to those interested in dramatics and public reading for the summer term. The purpose in offering private work is to give those interested in dramatics a chance to do more intensive work under direct supervision of an instructor.

This instruction is designed to develop personality, poise and power of expression of the individual by training in voice, vocal expression, pantomime and dramatic thinking. The course begins with fundamental exercises and short readings and progresses until larger and more difficult readings are studied.

The tuition will be the same as private lessons in the Conservatory of Music. One lesson per week for one quarter is $12.50; two lessons per week for one quarter is $25.00. The same credit system as in the Conservatory will prevail.

These private lessons will be given by Miss Laveta McClanahan of the College faculty. Special attention will be given to private lessons for children. Those interested in this work should see Miss McClanahan or telephone the College.

THIS WEEK IN MISSOURI HISTORY.

May 31-June 6.

Compiled by the State Historical Society of Missouri, Columbia, Floyd C. Shoemaker, Secretary.

Fifty years ago on the 3d day of June, Missourians gave themselves to prayer and fasting. It was the year of the Rocky Mountain locusts, the year of grasshoppers. The French in their vivid phrasemaking would have called 1875 in Missouri "L'annee des Locustes," or L'anne des Sauterelles." So appalling was the destruction, so pressing the prayers for material and spiritual aid, that Gov. Charles H. Hardin by proclamation set aside June 3, 1875 as a day of prayer and fasting.

The oldest plague in history, perhaps, is the grasshopper or locust. In literature, sacred and profane, it is met with. The earliest record is 3800 B. C. In American history the plague also appears early, and even in 1820 it is met with in Missouri records. The next great attack was in the 50s, followed a decade later by two years of destruction.

In 1873 the grasshoppers appeared again and by 1874 had overrun thirty-five Western Missouri counties, stretching from the northern to the southern boundary. All the territory lying north and west, stretching to Canada and the Rockies, was affected. The center of destruction was the four tiers of counties in Eastern Kansas and the two tiers in Western Missouri. The area covered was 250 miles east and west and 300 miles north and south.

The year 1874 brought other calamities to Kansas and Missouri. A national financial depression was increased by a severe drought and a hard winter. Chinch bug and army worm took their yearly toll in the millions of dollars. The flat-headed apple borer ruined fruit. The Colorado beetle, which in fifteen years had marched from Colorado to the Atlantic, forced the price of potatoes from 25 cents to $2 a bushel. There is little wonder, then, that when the Arabs' "army of the great god" reappeared in the spring of 1875 Missourians in humility invoked divine assistance.

The grasshopper plague of 1875 was the union of an invasion from the Northwest and a new crop from eggs laid in the preceding fall. The insects advanced in dense swarms extending from earth to sky. They resembled a snowstorm and moved with the wind. In the public square of Independence fifteen barrels were caught in one day. To save their crops farmers purchased grasshoppers by the bushel. Others used lime and salt. Some dug pits. Fire and coal oil drags were employed. But nothing gave more than temporary relief. From the middle of May to the first of July the destruction of crops and grasses, orchards and trees continued.

Trains were stopped on the Missouri Pacific and the Cameron branch of the Hannibal and St. Joseph, until crews could clear and sand the rails. Cattle were fed on tree leaves and straw. The insects ate the wool on the backs of sheep. Gardens were cleared and trees were stripped of bark and leaves. The last plants to vanish were potato, tomato and tobacco. Grapes were cut from the vines, but were not eaten. Green apples were let alone, while green peaches were devoured and the stones left hanging on the trees. Wild grasses were untouched, but meadows and blue grass were quickly dispatched. All green crops were cut to the ground. The land was devastated.

Meetings were held in Missouri cities to send money and food to the ruined counties. Thousands of dollars were raised, tons of food collected. Other states sent contributions. The State Board of Equalization lowered assessments. Kansas, a worse sufferer than Missouri, shared in the means of assistance. The disappearance of the plague early in July permitted the raising of fair crops. And "the year of the grasshoppers" passed into history.

The items of interest recorded during the calamity are filled with the comedy and tragedy of human nature. Poems on the grasshopper appeared. Advertisements were run: "Still they come, for Duff's grasshopper cure," "Drugs at grasshopper prices at Shaw's." To fail was to be "grasshoppered."

As usual, man tried to see good in the evil. Poultry thrived on the grasshoppers, and people prophesied unlimited profits. Agricultural authorities suggested machines to press grasshoppers. The oil was reported to have many virtues. The residue was an ideal fertilizer. But the great hope of optimists was the use of the grasshopper as food. Biblical literature was appealed to. The Mormons were reported in the 50's to have lived for weeks on grasshopper diet, despite the dearth of honey. The collecting of historical evidence reached the point of practical demonstration. This item in the Bates County Record, Butler, Mo., of June 19, 1875, copied from the Warrensburg, (Mo.) Daily News, afforded in its wit or wisdom interesting reading to the grasshopper food faddists of the day:

Locusts as Food—Practical Test of the Matter.

Yesterday afternoon Messrs. Riley and Straight determined to test the cooked locust question, in regard to its adaptability as food for the human stomach.

Getting wind of the affair, and being always in haste to indulge in free feeding, we made bold to intrude ourselves on our scientific friends. We found a bounteous table spread, surrounded by the gentlemen named, accompanied by Mrs. Straight and Mrs. Maltby. Without much waste of ceremony there were five persons seated and we were helped to soup which plainly showed its locust origin, and tasted like chicken soup—and it was good; after seasoning was added we could distinguish a delicate mushroom flavor—and it was better. Then came batter-cakes, through which locusts were will mixed. The soup banished silly prejudice and sharpened our appetite for this next lesson, the batter-cakes disappeared, also. Baked locusts were then tried (plain hoppers, without grease or condiment), and, either with or without accompaniments, it was pronounced an excellent wish.

The meal was closed with dessert a la "John the Baptist"—baked locusts and honey—and, if we know anything, we can testify that this distinguished Scripture character must have thrived on his rude diet in the wilderness of Judea.

We believe this is the first attempt at putting this insect to his best use, and the result is not only highly satisfactory to those brave enough to make the attempt, but should this insect make his visit oftener and cause greater destruction, future generations will hail its presence with joy. It will be a jubilee year—like manna in the wilderness, or quails in the desert—food without money and without price.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Neighbors and son, Edward, of Guilford came Saturday night and will live in Maryville during the summer term at the College.

Road Question Before County Court Today

County Judges Meet Today in Regular Session—Go Out to View Road This Afternoon.

The question of whether a stretch of road a quarter mile, abutting the northeast quarter of section 25 in Green township, about seven miles southwest of Maryville, should be closed or the fence moved and opened for traffic, was considered today by the county court in regular monthly session.

As the matter now stands a fence runs in the middle of the road, placed there some time ago by Harold Heaton. This shuts off an outlet from the farm of Mrs. N. F. Hopper, in the same section and the new renter on Mr. Heaton's farm is requesting that the fence be moved and the road fixed for travel.

The county court and deputy county clerk, Fred Wright, went to the road in controversy this afternoon to make a decision.

Mr. Heaton is willing to contribute $50 and move his fence back if the court will put in the necessary bridges, which if put in would cost about $3,000. However, the court is reluctant to expend so much money on a road where there is not much travel, and this road has been practically closed for some time.

However, Mr. Heaton did not go through the necessary procedure to have the road vacated and may be forced to move his fence back from the middle of the road.

Luther A. Richman of Maryville appeared on the program at the twelfth annual banquet and commencement exercises of the St. Joseph Law School, St. Joseph, Friday night at the Moila Shrine Club. Sunday's St. Joseph Gazette contained the following concerning Mr. Richman's group of solos:

L. A. Richman, instructor of voice at the Northwest Missouri State Teachers college, Maryville, Mo., pleased the audience with his vocal solos. One selection, "A Chip Off the Old Block," was particularly greeted with a roar of applause. John B. Elliott, an instructor of music at Central high school played the accompaniments.

Brookfield, Mo. May 27—"Mucilage and Honey" might be the title to a little drama enacted here recently.

A local resident whose failing is an insatiable appetite for strained honey was the victim. On his way home one day he purchased a jar of the succulent stuff. That evening he and his wife went to a movie, leaving the children at home. The kiddies employed their time cutting out pictures from newspapers and pasting them on card board with mucilage which, in appearance strikingly resembled pa's strained honey. Later in the evening the mucilage jar was dropped on the floor and broken. With the engenuity of a regular diplomat, the eldest child procured another jar and emptied the mucilage into it. This he set upon a shelf near the strained honey.

Next morning dawned clear with no hint of the approching tradegy. The father ordered flapjacks for breakfast. Mistaking the mucilage for the 100 proof strained bee-product he emptied the better part of the jar on the steaming cakes. The children sat speechless. One great mouthful was sufficient.

"I'm poisoned," said Pa. Get a doctor."

The doctor on the business end of a pullmotor revived the mucilage victim.

A little seance in the wood shed spelled finis on the last act.

Chicago Cash Grain Review.

Chicago, June 1.—Grain futures went into a sinking spell following the opening bulge and finished sharply lower on the Chicago Board of trade today.

Considerable wheat was dumped on the market because of better crop outlooks. Many crop complaints were received but in most cases, they were believed to have been reiterated for market effect.

Weakness in corn was inspired by the lower wheat trade. The market felt liquidating pressure indulged in by commission houses who saw improved crop prospects.

Oats dropped moderately. General demand improved on damage complaints. The upward movement was checked by weakness in other grains.

Buying by packers and oil intrests boosted provisions.

Paris, June 1.—(United Press)—Modistes bills, jewelers' accounts and kindred other drains on the treasury are beginning to hand the world's heavyweight champion, Jack Dempsey, a real knockout.

Interviewed today, just before the count of 10, Dempsey groaned despairingly and opined that every time he turned around in Paris—or to be more accurate—every time his beautiful bride the former Estelle Taylor—ventured forth it set him back one or two hundred thousand francs.

"Come on in here" he told the United Press correspondent, inviting him into the exclusion of the dressing room of his friend the vanquished Georges Carpentier. "I get nicked a couple of hundred thousand of these francs every time any body speaks to me."

He closed the door cautiously.

"Here it'll be safer" he said jovially.

Asked what he was doing and how our fair city impressed him, he replied he wasn't having much time for "night lifting."

"Montmarte" he sniffed. "I've got no time for that for I've got to pay bills.

The bills, it developed, were run up on the Rue de la Paix and the Rue Royale for lovely wearables—clothes and jewels—for Estelle.

Dempsey admitted a bit sheepishly that he always accompanied his bride on these expeditions into the realms of women's finery and liked, even though some of the prices hit him foul.

He'd had time to see the Follies Bergere, the Moulin Rouge and one or two other spots dear to the hearts of Americans in search of the gayness of gay and his friends "philosopher and guide" Georges, had piloted him handsomely he said.

Members of opposite political faith had characterized him as being impartial, urbane and alert.

They declared he had played perfectly the often difficult and self-effacing role. His sound sense, his humor, his solicitude and lack of self-importance made both sides of the Chamber respect him.

During President Wilson's absence and illness his behavior was tactful. Yet, at proper times and places, he voiced his own opinions. He was shrewd, sagacious and unaffected.

Speaking "right out in meeting," he told the Virginia Bar Association that, "if the Senate had considered prohibition in executive session not twenty Senators would have voted for it."

This declaration launched a storm of protest on his head.

When he left Washington and his colleagues bestowed on him parting gifts and well-wishes, one of them characterized him as "Tom Marshall—a good fellow, a good Democrat and a good American."

Another called him "an able and high-principled public servant — a speaker of no mean powers and a thinker of clear thoughts."

As Governor of Indiana he said:

"This is still a federation of States," and demanded they "discharge the duties of local self-government." Then he proposed that "the usurpations of the General Government be resisted."

His Idea of Public Service.

He summed up his idea of public service in a letter to a Western newspaperman, who, with a well-grown bump of curiosity, wrote the Governors of various States letters of inquiry, one of which brought from Marshall the following reply:

"Ever since I was eighteen years of age I have been in politics, for the reason that I believe that a people can have any sort of government they want, and if they do not have the kind they want they ought not to complain at the kind which is given to them.

"I therefore thought and still think that it is the duty of every man to take an intelligent interest in public affairs and try to ascertain what is right, and do the very best thing which he can for his country.

"My entry into it as a candidate for office was purely accidental, so far as I can see from the human standpoint. I was boomed by my friends for Governor at a time when I was away from home.

"It was without my knowledge or consent; but you know the average man has a telephone at hand to listen to the call of his friends. I heard and heeded and was elected."

Says Congressmen Should Act.

Later he told another interviewer: "The people, in my judgment, don't intend that their representatives should be guided by their constituents, but that elected representatives should act for them.

"I don't think when people hire a lawyer that they should ask him to do what they want. Advice should not come from the client to the lawyer, but from the lawyer to the client. If the client does not like the advice, he can get another lawyer."

On still another occasion when, as ranking member of the Federal Fact-Finding Commission during the national coal strike, he was cornered in New York by reporters who wanted to know his ideas about our form of government, he said:

"Our form of government is all right. I don't say it's the best in the world. Mexico has just as good a Constitution as ours, but not as good a Government.

"I sometimes think England has a better Constitution because she has none, but England has no better Government."

Thomas R. Marshall was born in North Manchester, Ind., March 14, 1854, a scion of one of the oldest families in Virginia.

The grand-nephew of former Chief Justice John Marshall, of the United States Supreme Court, he is a direct descendant of Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, signer of the Declaration of Independence. His father was a physician. He was graduated in 1873 from Wabash College.

Became Lawyer at 21.

He was admitted to the bar in Columbia City, Ind., on his twenty-first birthday. He soon became a conspicuous figure in the courts.

In 1895 he married Miss Lois Kinsey. On January 1, 1909, he was elected Governor of Indiana on the Democratic ticket. Before that he had been a member of the City School Board, a trustee of Wabash College, and a Sunday School teacher.

In 1911 thirty delegates went to the Baltimore convention instructed for Marshall for the Presidential nomination.

But the convention nominated him as Woodrow Wilson's running mate, and it is needless to repeat the story of his and Wilson's election.

The Marshalls have no children, but they have adopted one child, a boy.

The former Vice-President, true to the traditions of the State that developed James Whitcomb Riley and other literati, is known as a poet, a scholar, a parliamentarian and something of a humorist.

Mr. Marshall spoke at a political meeting in Maryville in 1916 when he was a candidate for the second time for the vice-presidency. He was accompanied on the trip to Maryville by his wife. He has also appeared in Maryville as a chautauqua lecturer.

And the Nation Is Still Waiting For This, Too

A keen sense of humor was the outstanding characteristic of Thomas Riley Marshall during the years he was vice-president.

Probably his most famous remark was made while the Senate, of which he was the presiding officer, was debating "What's Wrong With the Nation?"

"What the nation needs most," Marshall suddenly announced from the chair, "is a good 5-cent cigar."
